The Worst of It.
If the best of life, as it is said to be, is but anticipation, the worst of it is surely worry and vexation. They are the plows and harrows that furrow the brow and cut deeply into the nerves. It is constant plowing of this kind that tears up the nerve tissues. The greater nervous, like the bigger roots, may resist for a time, but the ploughshare gets down to them. Worry brings all sorts of other ailments of a torn-up system and at last the scati nerve is reached, a disturbance to which in the form of neuritis is attended by excruciating pains. A Pennsylvania Farmer.
M. M. Luther, East Troy, Pa., grew last season over 200 bushels of Salzer's Silver Mine Oats from one measured acre! How is that for old Pennsylvania? Over 30,000 farmers are going to try and beat this in 1906 and win $200 in gold! Then think of 116 bushels of barley from one acre and 1200 big full bushels of potatoes and 230 bushels of Golden Triumph Corn!

What is teosinte, and sand vetch and spurry and 50 other rare things? Well, Salzer's catalogue will tell you. Largest growers of clovers, grasses and farm seeds in America. Freight cheap to Pennsylvania and the east.

If you will cut this out and send it with 10c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will receive their mammoth catalogue and ten packages grain and grasses, including above oats, free. (A.)

EMPIRE OF DRESS.

NEW AND BECOMING GARMENTS FOR WOMEN.

A Stylish Basque of Cheviot—Handsome Cape and Hood of Boucle Cloth for Misses—The "Newmarket."

BROWN mixed cheviot made the stylish tailor finished basque, depicted in the first large illustration. It is decorated in latest mode with stitched straps and small gull buttons. The glove-fitting adjustment is accomplished by single bust darts, underarm and side back gores, and a curving center back seam. The closing is in the center front, the seamless vest extending to close on left, under the graduated straps that extend to lower edge of front. The back is provided with straps to match, both meeting at the shoulder seam. The shallow circular basque is joined to the lower edge starting from the darts in front, the free edges being stitched to match the straps. The full girth sleeves are gathered at the top and arranged over comfortable linings, a hollow box-pleat being laid underneath, that extends to wide end depth, with the edges caught down by rows of small buttons. A close fitting collar finishes the neck, that can close in front or on the left shoulder, as preferred. The tailor-made gown is the favorite for shopping or street wear, and this style is especially chic and becoming. Serge, cheviot, tweed, camel's hair, crepon or cloth in the stylish mixtures, checks, stripes or plain varieties will develop handsomely by the mode.

The quantity of 44-inch wide material required to make this basque for a lady having a 32-inch bust measure is 3 1/2 yards; for a 36-inch size, 3 3/4 yards; for a 40-inch size, 3 1/2 yards.

MISSIE'S CAPE WITH HOOD.

The stylish cape of boucle cloth shown in the second large illustration, and designed by May Mantion, is handsomely lined with plaid silk. The cape is shaped in circular outline, and can be worn with or without a seam in center back, as best suits the material. The shoulders are smooth, smoothly fitted without darts, and it falls to fashionable length in stylish ripples all around. The collar can be raised, with the fronts rolled as shown, closed higher, or rolled over on cape as preferred. The pointed hood is lined throughout, displaying the pretty plaid silk on its rounded front edges. The cape is hooked closely at the neck, two pointed straps closing the front edges with bone buttons. The edges of cape, straps and collar are finished with machine stitching in tailor style; but this can be omitted if a plain completion is preferred. Capes by the mode are made of medium and heavy cloaking in plain and mixed colors, with smooth or rough-finished surface. For early spring capes in this style are made of the dress material and warmly interlined. The hood can be finished separately and hooked on at the neck when worn, or omitted when not desired.

The quantity of 54-inch wide material required to make this cape for a miss twelve years old is 1 1/2 yards; for a fourteen-year-old size, 1 3/4 yards; for a sixteen-year-old size, 1 1/2 yards.

SHIRT WAISTS.

The large shops are already displaying on their counters new cotton waists for the spring and summer of 1895. One great retail store is known grounds of quaint colors, or dotted, or else in checks and stripes. The chintz flowered waists that women of fashion adopted last year, the designs like foulards, are also occasionally seen. Those with buff ground strewn with roses were lovely last summer with light-colored skirts of covert cloth, but are not effective with black skirts. Turn-down collars of linen or of the fabric of the shirt will rival the standing collar, and the cuffs are cut to match. Even linen bastistes, English holland, and the familiar grass linen will be more useful for shirt waists than last year's styles. They are reformed-looking, are capable of being semi-dress if well made, do not show soil, and are generally becoming. The new grass linens have stripes of color woven in, or else there is an all-over design of flowers embroidered in white, cream tinted, or in colors, or else lace designs applied from their exquisite garniture.—Harper's Bazar.

LADIES' LONG COAT.

This stylish top garment commonly known as the "Newmarket," is made of dark, rough-faced cheviot, and closed with large pearl or bone buttons. It is shaped according to the latest tailor mode, the fronts being widened to fall loosely below the hips, conforming in shape to the fashionable skirts. The loose, double-breasted fronts are deeply faced, and reversed at the top in coat lapels that meet the ends of the deep, rolling storm collar in notches. The lapels and collar can be raised and closed to the throat for better protection in inclement weather. The back and sides fit closely, with underarm and side back gores and a well-curved center seam that ends in deep coat laps below the waist line. Rounded coat plaits that are marked by single buttons give added fullness at the side back gores, the stylish ripple effect at the sides in the skirt portion distinguishing the new modes. The full girth sleeves are shaped with a single seam, the fullness at the top being plaited into the arm's eye, a double seam of machine stitching simulating cuffs. Pockets are inserted on each front and concealed by laps that are neatly lined and stitched in tailor style. The edges of rough or smooth-faced cloth, tweed, cheviot, serge or diagonal in checks, stripes, mixed, plain or fancy weave will make stylish, comfortable and protective coats for storm or ordinary everyday wear.

A Flying Frog.

Some years ago an Englishman traveling in the East Indian archipelago in search of rare species discovered one of the most singular of all the animals which are enabled to simulate flying. He was moving slowly along in a deep forest when he noticed what was apparently a bird darting down from a tree, though its movements were extremely unbirdlike. It seemed to dive down with a plunge, then rose and caught another tree, some fifty feet away. The strangest part of this flight was that no wings could be seen. The naturalist stopped and began a careful examination and in a short time was repaid by catching the little flyer in the act. Alarmed by the net it darted from the tree and missing its object fell upon the ground and was brought to the traveler in triumph by the natives. It was a frog—a new tree frog—a most attractive little creature that had been endowed by nature with enormous webbed feet which it expanded like wings as it darted through the air and which supported it sufficiently to pass from tree to tree in graceful leaps.

While such a method of progression is called flying it is simply because it resembles the act of flight, being, in reality, merely soaring, illustrating the principle of the parachute. The web between the toes of the frog press against the wind and form a strong resistance, as do the membranes that are stretched between the rays of the fin of the gurnard. The delicate skin that covers the false ribs of the flying lizard also buoy it up, preventing a too rapid fall, while the folds of loose skin of the colugo when stretched to their fullest extent perform a similar office for that interesting animal. In all these instances the plan is one devised by nature to aid in escape and self-preservation.—Atlanta Constitution.

Sent His Eye to Be Examined.

A short time ago an order was issued on one of the lines of the Pennsylvania Company for all section men to come to the office on a certain day and have their eyes examined. Just before the man who had charge of the tests left the office a messenger boy came hurrying in with a small package neatly tied up and addressed to the eye inspector. The latter opened it and was surprised to find a glass eye wrapped up in tissue paper and also an old fashioned silver watch. The contents of the package proved a puzzle to the inspector until he unfolded a note, which, on being deciphered, was found to read as follows:

"Oye inspector—Dear Sir: The day before yesterday at nine I got word to come down and have me eye looked after for cular blindness as ye call it. I had forty-five ticks and ten scales to put down beyond the sand out, and as Jerry Sullivan and Dominick Cooley were laid up since the wake that wuz holded over Denny Doherty, my hands was too short to operate. 'Twas lucky that the rite eye that was first in my head was put out with a blow of a pik and me glass eye that is a perfect figger of the eye that was not put out is sent to you together with my watch for the hexamination. I could spare the glass eye better than the eye in the head and if she is cular blind I'll get one that ain't. Yures truly, Anthony Driscoll."—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Animal Fur.

Fur is a thread-like fiber which grows out of the pores of the skins of animals. It grows in length from the root, and not from the top, as with vegetable productions. The lower portion merely lengthens out, and the top projects forward, consequently, it once cut, it will always remain blunt. It is tubular and filled with oil, which gives to the fiber its color. In addition to the oil it contains mineral matter, among which are sulphur and iron. A close examination of the fiber will, to a certain extent, show the section of the country the animal inhabits. The short and crisp, with an oval or angular cross section, indicates a tropical growth; the long and soft, with circular cross section, a Northern climate. The fibers form different structure and value, that which is taken from the back of a land animal being the finest, while the reverse is true of the animal which confines itself mostly to the water, the underside being much finer than the back.

Chinese Americanized.

Chinamen in Philadelphia, Penn., are slow to adopt civilization. Since the days of One Lung, who, it is believed, was the first laundryman to land here, nobody has ever thought of keeping tab on their names until now. The city directory for 1895 designates Chinese laundries by giving the addresses at which they may be found. Their names are omitted entirely. This seems to have wounded the pride of the younger generation of Chinese laundrymen, particularly those who wear hand-me-down suits and attend Sunday-school, and as a result the city has an entirely new crop of laundries for 1896. Sam Lee is now Samuel G. Lee; Yip Sing is now James Sing; Hong Quon is now Henry Queen; Jim Lee is James A. Lee, and so on. In this way no less than thirty Chinamen have worked their addresses into the new directory. Hit the pipe?—New York Press.

A Remarkable Wound.

An extraordinary tale is told by Major Pryce Gordon of a wound received in the Waterloo campaign by one Donald of the Ninety-second Regiment. He had been shot in the thigh by a musket ball. The ball was extracted, but still the wound did not heal. A large abscess formed. Punctures were applied, and on an incision being made, lo and behold! a five-franc piece and a one-franc piece were extracted, together with a bit of cloth, the larger coin having been hit nearly in the centre and forced into the shape of a cup.—Notes and Queries.

Evaporated Potatoes.

Evaporated potatoes, prepared in the same manner as evaporated apples, are to be put on the market from Minnesota next fall. Last season's potato crop was so large that many millions of bushels were wasted, and experiments were made in evaporating potatoes. The experiments were successful, and two big factories for preparing potatoes in this manner are building.—New York Sun.

There is no other work in the world of which so many copies are printed annually as of the Chinese almanac. This almanac is printed at Peking, and is a monopoly of the Emperor. Amputation of Frozen Fingers.

All of Dick Snyder's fingers and both thumbs were operated upon recently at the hospital of the Sacred Heart by Drs. MacLean and Newman. Two fingers on the left hand was taken off at the near knuckle joint, and all the others on both hands were amputated, some near the tips and others at the first and second joints. It will be necessary to amputate all the toes of the right foot and to remove parts of the bones of both feet.

Snyder is the trapper who was terribly frozen on New Year's Day and night while endeavoring to save his companion, Bronkings, in the mountains northwest of Athol, Idaho. Bronkings perished and Snyder saved his own life by encircling a small tree with his left arm, walking around the trunk all night and allowing tobacco to avoid falling asleep. When he was brought to Spokane by his young brother, Walter Snyder, it was apparent that he would lose some of the fingers of the left hand, which had been most exposed while clinging to the tree, but hope was entertained that the right hand and both feet might be saved intact.—Spokane (Wash.) Review.

Doctors' Office Building.

"The Clinic" is the name selected by Architect Willis G. Hale, of Philadelphia, Penn., for a most remarkable office building. His plan is for a structure that will include every feature of a medical college plant and a private hospital, along with the offices for the individual use of physicians.

In this age of specialties in medicine, and particularly surgery, the necessity for such a structure seems to have arrived. Mr. Hale says he has already enough assurances in hand to make the project a success.—New York Press.

A WOMAN'S DESPAIR.

COULD SEE NOTHING AHEAD BUT A LIFE OF PAIN.

She Tells a Reporter How She Suffered—How She Was Cured—And How Her Life Has Been Brightened by the Sunshine of Health.

From the Drych, Utica, N. Y.

Mrs. E. McLaughlin, who resides at 83 Miller Street, Utica, N. Y., but formerly lived at 110 Seymour Avenue, in the same city, is a lady nearly seventy years old. She was born at Marcy, Oneida County, N. Y., and has resided in Oneida County all her life and is well-known in the community. She was reported in Utica that Mrs. McLaughlin was wonderfully cured of a severe case of rheumatism, as well as indigestion, by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Reporter of Drych was sent to the subject and got the truth. Mrs. McLaughlin said she had suffered with rheumatism for about twenty years and was at times unable to rise from her chair. Her suffering was intense, and she was sometimes driven nearly wild with agonizing pain. Of late she had also been troubled with indigestion and her health had become greatly undermined. She was almost discouraged, being unable to get relief either from the doctors or through the numerous remedies which she tried. Mrs. McLaughlin had often read of the cures effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but, after her many failures to obtain relief through other remedies she had but little confidence that anything would help her. She continued to grow worse from day to day and had given up all hope of ever being restored to health.

One day Mrs. McLaughlin spoke of Pink Pills to a friend who was calling upon her. It happened that this friend had had some experience with Pink Pills and knew their value. She urgently advised Mrs. McLaughlin to give them a trial, which she consented to do. She procured one box and before its contents had been entirely used she noticed quite an improvement in her health. She waited some time before getting another box, as she was so much better, but when she had taken three boxes she was completely cured. She is no longer troubled with indigestion, and when seen by the representative of Drych was walking around as briskly as anyone of her age could be expected to do.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 4th day of July, 1895.
